Harlow College’s £11m skills hub at airport set to take off

‘One of the most ambitious and truly exciting projects taking place in Essex’

By Martin Ford

AN £11 MILLION technical skills college at Stansted Airport has been given the green light.

The joint venture with Harlow College received planning permission on Thursday August 3, from Uttlesford District Council.

The two-storey facility - the first of its kind at a major UK airport - is designed to bridge the skills gap in STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Maths) subjects as well as specific airport areas such as aircraft and airport engineering, business studies, logistics and supply chain management, asset management, hospitality and customer service.

Will Allanson, vice-principal at Harlow College, said he was ‘delighted’ by the news.

Milestone

“This is a significant milestone as it enables us to move to the next phase of realising this important facility for the airport, the local community and the wider region,” he added.

More than 500 people are expected to train at the college each year in technical skills, traineeships and apprenticeships.

Stansted Airport’s CEO, Andrew Cowan, said: “This is excellent news for everyone connected to Stansted Airport and Harlow College.

“A project like this will provide more opportunities for local people to acquire the skills they need to join us as we play an ever more critical role in providing runway capacity in the South East of England.”

The project has received grants totalling £7 million from the South East Local Enterprise Partnership (SELEP) Local Growth Fund and Essex County Council.

Councillor Kevin Bentley, deputy leader of Essex County Council, said: “This is one of the most ambitious and truly exciting projects that is taking place in Essex.

Beacon

“The technical college is a beacon of hope and education in West Essex that will set a standard and example to the rest of the UK.

Work is expected to start on the site later this year and will be ready to open in time for the 2018 autumn term.

Stansted Airport boss Andrew Cowan said the announcement was excellent news.

A HARLOW family are demanding a company takes away their ill-fitting kitchen three months after it should have been completed.

Julie Sampson, of Spinning Wheel Mead, Harlow, said her household was left without drinking water for two weeks as Wren Kitchens “ignored” their calls.

Her mother-in-law, Christine Perry, 65, is particularly upset having waited 11 years since she bought the house to install a replacement unit.

Mrs Sampson, 43, said: “We paid in full for a new kitchen from Wren in Harlow and they agreed for it to be fitted on May 1. We are still waiting for it to be finished.

“We have had piles of rubbish outside the front for months, which is a fire hazard. They have ignored us and we’ve had to chase them continuously, all to no avail.”

She added: “It does now resemble a kitchen but the workmanship is appalling and most of the doors need to be replaced. At one point they left us without drinking water for two weeks.

“I have told them that I want my money back and the kitchen that is fitted removed but once again I have been told I will get a call back that never happens.”

Mrs Sampson and her husband Daniel, 41, have two daughters Ruby and Frey, aged three and six.

They moved into Mrs Perry’s house two years ago and bought the kitchen from the Wren shop at Queensgate in Edinburgh Way.

“We have had to compromise on everything and it is not the kitchen we ordered,” she added. “Not one cupboard lines up, there is chipped wood.”

The reporter has approached Wren Kitchens for a response, but none had been received at the time of publication.

Universal Credit roll-out means the way many people receive money has changed

Benefits shake-up may leave you £13k better off

By William Mata

The way many people receive benefits in Harlow has changed this month with Universal Credit (UC) being rolled out. All claimants, including people with disabilities, families, low earners and job seekers, will now be supported by UC.

The Government hopes the reform will see families who move into work claim back 85 per cent on their eligible childcare costs, potentially boosting finances by £13,000 a year. Employment minister Damian Hinds feels the service is simplifying the system.

Rewarding

However, critics argue UC will not achieve its aim of providing a more efficient way of assisting the needy and rewarding the efforts of those who can earn.

UC became more widely available in Harlow from July 19 and replaces six benefits with one monthly payment, and was already offered to all single job seekers in Harlow.

Jobseekers have access to a work coach to find employment or help increase their hours. UC users also have access to an online account where they can manage their claim and see the date of their next payment.

Damian Hinds said: “Universal Credit is central to our goal of building a Britain that works for everyone and it is already transforming lives across the country.”

“With the simplification of the system, making it more tailored to claimants’ needs and enabling those who have been out of a job for a while to take on short contracts to build up their skills and confidence for a full-time role.”

Troubled hospital the only one to hit wait-time targets

93.8% of patients start treatment in 18 weeks

By William Mata
william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PRINCESS Alexandra Hospital was the only infirmary in Essex to hit a key NHS waiting time target.

A recent survey found 93.8 per cent of patients at PAH, in Hamstel Road, Harlow, waited less than the benchmark 18 weeks to start treatment.

This compares to bottom placed Basildon and Thurrock University Hospitals, where 84.5 per cent were waiting less than 18 weeks.

The NHS target for hospitals is 92 per cent.

PAH is currently in special measures after a Care and Quality Commission inspection rated the governing trust ‘inadequate’ in September last year.

Since then Lance McCarthy has succeeded Phil Morley as chief executive and the trust has started their #red2green campaign to get patients discharged faster.

Works to transform the emergency department, at a cost of £925,000, are also currently ongoing.

The survey results come at a time when 1,651 people nationwide have waited more than one year for treatment to begin. This is the highest recorded figure since August 2012.

At the Mid Essex Hospital alone, 60 people had been waiting more than a year for treatment, according to the survey. This is an eight-year high.

Princess Alexandra’s figure is also above the national average of 90.5 per cent of patients starting treatment within 18 weeks.

MP raises a burning woodpile question in Commons

By Martin Ford

Nazeing’s MP has urged ministers to take action over the controversial woodpile at the centre of several fires in recent years.

Robert Halfon, whose Harlow constituency covers part of the village, raised the issue with Defra minister George Eustice in the Commons.

Fire crews have spent hours at the site in Hoe Lane keeping blazes under control after fires have taken hold in the towering pile of wood, most recently in May.

Mr Halfon said it had burned down four times within the past four years, in the process “causing massive damage to one greenhouse glass enterprise as well as local residents”.

He added: “Many residents feel that not enough has been done, and we cannot understand why new licences are given to new companies to ‘run’ the woodpile site. It causes enormous damage and expense, it burned down again only recently.

“I urge my honourable friend the minister to look into the matter because it has a significant effect on the Lee Valley glasshouse industry.”

Mr Eustice responded: “I am not familiar with the issue that my honourable friend raises, but if there are concerns about the licensing of the woodpile operation he mentions, I will ask officials to look at them.”
A FORMER Parachute Regiment officer who served in Afghanistan has been jailed for his part in crack cocaine and heroin being dealt from his flat in Harlow.

Matthew Durham, 42, was arrested after police searched his home in Brockles Mead and found that the premises was being used to package and sell crack cocaine and heroin.

Durham pleaded guilty to two counts of being concerned in the supply of Class A drugs on the first day of his trial and came before Chelmsford Crown Court to be sentenced on Thursday, August 3.

Alongside him in the dock was 20-year-old Jeremiah Briscoe, of Witherington Road, in Highbury East, London.

Prosecutor Matthew Turner told the court how when officers came to arrest the defendants at Durham's flat, they saw one of the pair drop a package from the balcony which contained half a gram of crack cocaine and a very small quantity of heroin.

"When police gained entry to the property it was only Mr Durham and Mr Briscoe who were present," said Mr Turner.

"On Mr Briscoe's phone, analysis showed Whatsapp messages relating to the supply of Class A drugs. Mr Durham's phone also contained Whatsapp messages, on a much lower scale, of selling Class A drugs.

"Also in the search of the property, there was standard drug paraphernalia, but in addition, £200 in a black rucksack on the living room floor in addition to the £435 found on Mr Briscoe himself." Mr Turner then went on to list Durham’s previous convictions, which included offences of dishonesty, motoring offences, robbery, shoplifting and possession of drugs.

A member of the probation service, who had been asked to compile a pre-sentence report relating to Briscoe, told the court how he was one of seven children whose father left the family home to move back to Jamaica, never to be heard from again.

She explained how Briscoe, who was undertaking a degree instoreonly apprenticeship with Newton Banking Investment in London, became estranged from his mother and made a deal with a person unknown to be paid to live in a flat in Harlow that he would be able to sell drugs from.

During his interview with the probation service, Briscoe described his actions as a “stupid mistake” that would ruin his career prospects.

It was also revealed he had been convicted of possessing cocaine, possessing a bladed article and robbery following an incident in November 2014.

Before speaking in mitigation for his client, Michael Stradling sought the court’s permission for Durham’s pastor, David Evans of the Light House Church in Harlow, to attest to his character.

Pastor Evans said: “When I first met Matthew he hadn’t long come out of a rehab centre where he had made a very speedy recovery from his addictions.”

Representations were also made that drugs were Durham’s only relief after having no support since being discharged from the Army.

Mr Stradling informed the court that in addition to Durham being a father-of-two, he has difficult family circumstances in that his father has dementia.

“He has been taken advantage of and he didn’t want to do this,” he added.

Addressing the pair before they were sentenced, Judge Charles Gratwicke said: “Class A drugs, as you both know for a variety of reasons, are highly addictive and they bring with them nothing but misery and deprivation, ill health and subsequently lead those addicted to them to crime.

“And on some occasions, those Class A drugs cost their lives.

Custodial

“You don’t need me to tell you that because you know that, everybody knows that. “But I mention it because that’s the reason why those who engage in the supply of Class A drugs can expect to receive a custodial sentence.

“In this particular case, the court has to bear in mind the position of the two of you. “You both found yourselves in that flat where active drug dealing was going on.”

Dealing with the younger of the two first, Judge Gratwicke noted that despite Briscoe’s age he was well aware of what he was doing, but accepted that he did not coerce his co-defendant.

“The fact remains you went into this enterprise with eyes open,” he said.

Briscoe was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment for the drugs offences and six months for the possession of criminal property to run concurrently and be served in a young offender institution.

Turning to Durham, Judge Gratwicke said: “You, Matthew Durham, are in a different position.

“You are different in matters of your age. You are different in terms of your antecedents.

“It’s not your first appearance before the courts. “You allowed your premises to be used for the selling of Class A drugs, in circumstances which do not amount to duress.

“I accept the basis of pleas that you felt coerced.”

Bearing in mind that Durham did not enter his plea until the day of his trial, Judge Gratwicke sentenced him to 12 months imprisonment for each count, to be served concurrently.

Matthew Durham was sentenced to 12 months in jail for each count, to be served concurrently.

Harvey Centre among recipients at first Harlow Town Centre Awards

THR Harvey Centre has won an award for Community Engagement in the first ever Harlow Town Centre Awards.

The awards were developed to celebrate Harlow Town Centre, its businesses and employees in its 70th anniversary year, partnered by Harlow Council and The Phoenix Resource Centre.

There were 13 awards covering a range of services and activities that take place in the town centre and were split into two judging categories – public voted and panel awarded.

A number of tenants in The Harvey Centre walked away with awards, namely:

- HMV – Retailer of the Year
- Cineworld – Leisure Retailer of the Year
- Legends – Professional Service of the Year
- Couzen’s Bakery – Customer Service of the Year
- Couzen’s Bakery – Food & Drink Retailer of the Year
- Couzen’s Bakery – Small & Independent Business of the Year
- Gina Birchmore (Tesco) – Employee of the Year
- Sharon Winstock (Vision Express) – Manager of the Year
- Amanda Westbury (Gibberd Gallery & Gatehouse Arts) – Award for Outstanding Achievement

Other winners on the night included:
- Lauren Barrows, Harlow Council – Harlow College Award for Apprenticeships
- Street4Homes – Community & Voluntary Based Project Of The Year
- Harlowsave Credit Union – Professional Service Of The Year

Bryan Young, manager at The Harvey Centre, said: “We’re thrilled to have won the award and we are really proud of all of our tenants that won on the night – they were all very deserving. One of the key factors in achieving our success has been the support shown by Harlow Town Council.”

Tributes have been paid to Essex County Cricket Club legend Doug Insole CBE after he died at the age of 91.

The former player, captain, chairman and president, died peacefully at his home on Saturday.

Essex Cricket described Doug as an “outstanding player”.

In a statement on their official website, they said: “Doug was one of the most outstanding players and administrators in cricket and affectionately known by everyone at the club as Mr Essex.”

Essex players wore black armbands at the Old Trafford test against South Africa on Monday as a mark of respect.

Career
Mr Insole was an excellent cricketer who made over 50 first-class centuries during his career.

During his early life, Mr Insole served in the Army for two years from 1944 before he began studying history at Cambridge, which is where his cricket career truly started.

After his third season in Cambridge, where he became captain for his final year, Mr Insole moved to Essex full time in 1949 and within a year, he had played one match for England and was earning respect within the ranks.

In 1951, Mr Insole took over the captaincy of Essex and led the county for an impressive nine years, where he showed risky leadership by pushing for victory even at the risk of defeat. Under Mr Insole’s captaincy, Essex Cricket transformed themselves from an average county championship side into an exciting, fresh team that were finally contenders for higher league positions.

When he called time on his playing career in 1963, Mr Insole had played nine tests for England, scoring more than 3,300 runs and 12 centuries.

However, it was his involvement in cricket after his retirement that raised his profile even further.

He joined the world’s most active cricket team, Marylebone Cricket Club, during the mid-1950s and served the committee across 38 years until 1984 – whilst also holding the position of president in 2006/07.

Whilst playing for Essex in 1960, he became a Test selector where he remained until 1979, along with his service as chairman of selectors between 1965 and 1966.

He was also chairman of the Test and County Cricket Board from 1975 until 1979, before managing England during their 1978-79 and 1982-83 Ashes tours in Australia.

Speaking to this newspaper about Doug Insole’s death, former Essex County Cricket Club head coach Paul Grayson said: “I’ve got some fantastic memories of him coming in and being around the dressing room often and he was always welcome because the players enjoyed seeing him and hearing some of his old stories and his words of wisdom.

Humour
“He was just a lovely bloke. Very sharp witted and he had a great sense of humour.

“Yeah, you’d maybe put three names for me in that category of Mr Essex and for me, Doug Insole is right up there with Graham Gooch and Keith Fletcher.

“I will always remember his general love for sport. I used to talk to him often about football when maybe the cricket wasn’t going so well and as we were both big football fans, I enjoyed those conversations with him.

“He was very knowledgeable.”

Surge in attacks on teachers by county’s primary school pupils

Shocking figures show violence across schools across England is on the increase

By Nikhil Shah

LAST year saw a record number of primary school teachers in Essex attacked by their students. There were 408 fixed-term exclusions of pupils as a result of these incidents between 2015 to 2016, the highest number since 2006.

The number of assaults was up from the 368 recorded in 2014 to 2015, with classroom violence now far more prevalent in recent years than ever before.

Secondary school pupils in Essex were suspended 64 times for assaults on teachers in 2016, a figure that has almost doubled since 2007.

Violence in the classroom is something that is not just isolated to Essex.

Across England, the number of permanent exclusions across all state-funded primary, secondary and special schools has increased from 5,795 in 2014 to 5,685 in 2015 to 2016.

This corresponds to around 35 expulsions per day over that academic year.

The trade unions NUT, ATL and GMB, all frequently deal with cases of staff being strangled, punched, kicked and having chairs thrown at them.

Some secondary school teachers admit that they live in fear of violent gangs operating within their schools and it has become more and more common for teachers to face false allegations of sexual abuse.

Police

Figures released under the Freedom of Information Act reveal that across Britain there was a 50 per cent rise in classroom incidents recorded by the police between 2014 and 2016.

This is only the tip of the iceberg.

In light of classroom violence, a teacher at the recent NASUWT conference in May said: “It is a taboo in our occupation. We just don’t talk about it.”

This stigma has arisen due to press-conscious headteachers wishing to preserve their reputation and the status of their school. A GMB Survey published in June has revealed that almost one in five – 18 per cent – of the assistants polled say they are attacked at least once a week.

One in ten is abused once a month, while 9 per cent say it happens once a term, and 17 per cent within the past year.

Almost a quarter also say they are verbally abused at least once a week.

“Teachers and school staff have a right to feel safe while doing their jobs and violence towards them is completely unacceptable.”

We have taken decisive action to put teachers back in charge of the classroom by giving them the powers they need to tackle poor behaviour and discipline.

“We have scrapped ‘no touch’ rules that stopped teachers removing disruptive pupils from classrooms, and ensured schools’ decisions on exclusions can no longer be overruled.”

There were also record numbers of suspensions for secondary pupils in Southend for assaulting their classmates.

There were 243 fixed term exclusions for students who attacked other pupils in 2016, a figure that has almost doubled from 5,795 in 2014 to 5,685 in 2015 to 2016.

The ATL says that classroom violence has been exacerbated by the decrease in funding for child mental health services.

Risk

This has resulted in students being unable to cope which in turn, generates a greater risk of violence.

In January 2016, a Department for Education spokesman said: “Teachers and school staff have a right to feel safe while doing their jobs and violence towards them is completely unacceptable.”

“We have taken decisive action to put teachers back in charge of the classroom by giving them the powers they need to tackle poor behaviour and discipline.

“We have scrapped ‘no touch’ rules that stopped teachers removing disruptive pupils from classrooms, and ensured schools’ decisions on exclusions can no longer be overruled.”

Shoppers serenaded by choir

THE Three Valleys Choir serenaded shoppers at a Harlow shopping centre earlier this month as part of the town’s 70th birthday celebrations.

Harvey Centre shoppers were delighted by the choir’s performance of songs from West End shows including Les Miserable, Chitty Chitty Bang Bang and Fiddler On The Roof to compositions by Irving Berlin, John Rutter.

They also performed two sea shanties, which were especially accompanied by Jane Kenton on the accordion and David Pearson on bass guitar.

The audience were invited to join in with Chatta Nooga Choo Choo and the show finished with the ever-popular When the Saints Go Marching In.

The Three Valleys Choir’s also performed a full concert last Saturday at St Luke’s Church in Enfield.

Funds roll in after bowls club stages gala evening

TYE Green Indoor Bowls Club in Harlow raised £4,255 for The Alzheimer’s Society in a charity evening.

Kevin Peacock, who hosted the gala event alongside Emma Jessop, participated in a skydive a few days before.

Ms Jessop herself will try to complete The London Alzheimer’s Memory Walk in September.

Harlow councillor Dan Long said: “I would like to say well done to the manager, staff, members and residents who came from far and wide to support a worthy cause.”

Students soar into third place at rocketry finals

EIGHT students from Stewards Academy, Parnall Road, Harlow, competed in the 2017 ADS UK Youth Rocketry Finals at Stow Maries Aerodrome.

The group faced nine other regional finalists from across the country. The students finished in third and won a UK bronze medal for the second year in a row. It was fantastic achievement.

John Flood, science teacher, said: “The students involved have represented Stewards phenomenally.”

Achievers saluted

AN incredible 127 young people from schools and clubs across Harlow came together to receive Jack Petchey Foundation Achievement Awards.

They were nominated by their peers and leaders, winning awards for a variety of achievements big and small but always for doing their best.

Paralympic gold medallist and former world record holder Danny Crates presented the awards.

He said: “I am so proud of all the young people whose achievements have been celebrated this evening, they are a true asset to their schools and clubs.”

THE Essex Business Excellence Awards attract the best businesses the region has to offer, from new businesses making a bold impact, to those demonstrating excellence in a particular sector whether it be in science and technology or in retail.

There is already a buzz around this year’s awards with businesses wanting to be associated with the prestigious event. Sponsorship of the awards comes in the form of headline sponsors Wortley Byers Law and London Stansted Airport, as well as category sponsors which include Choice Finance, Rickard Luckin, Jewson, Radio Essex, HSBC, James Hallam and Janine Edwards Wealth Management.

One business getting involved with the awards in a big way is brand agency Champions (UK) plc, event organisers of the Essex Business Excellence Awards. With clients located across the country, the agency has become known for events that are held around the nation. Champions (UK) plc offers a comprehensive range of services, providing their clients with a one-stop-shop for all their business needs including; creative, digital, marketing, PR, media, events, publishing, advertising, celebrity and web solutions.

This is the first year the agency has worked with the Essex Chronicle, Brentwood Gazette, Harlow Star and Herts and Essex Observer to deliver the Essex Business Excellence Awards, extending their expert event management to the occasion.

With the agency responsible for the delivery of other high-profile business awards across the country, the awards are in great hands and are sure to surpass all expectations.

Managing director Matthew Hayes, who established Champions (UK) plc in 2003, said: “As a successful business we understand the importance of maintaining long-standing business relationships. A company truly lives or dies by the relationships it forms, and these awards are a fantastic

The 2017 edition of the Essex Business Excellence Awards officially launched in May and since then a large number of companies have shown their interest.

However, businesses in Essex wanting to add an accolade to their name have just a few weeks left to enter into the awards.

With the nomination process coming to a close soon, on Friday, August 25, time is running out to get involved.

This year’s event has introduced a new line up of awards, such as the Leadership Team of the Year award. Winning an award of this kind truly adds to the team’s prestige and reputation for excellence. The award is open for a team that has demonstrable leadership skills. The entrants will have headed up a successful organisation while maintaining an inspiring and empowering drive for their staff by investing a great deal of time into their people.

If you are part of a team built around innovation, creativity, and determination then these traits could see you win an accolade on the night.

The full list of categories includes:
- Company of the Year
- Small Business of the Year
- New Business of the Year
- Entrepreneur
- Business Entrepreneur of the Year
- Contribution to the Community Award
- Not-for-Profit Organisation Award
- Sales and Marketing Award
- Retail Business of the Year
- Excellence in Innovation & Technology Award
- Services Award
- Creative Communications & Digital Business of the Year
- Customer Service Excellence Award

Once the nominations draw to a close, all application forms will be handed to the judges who will whittle them down to just three finalists per category. After that, they will have to wait until the awards ceremony to find out who has triumphed.

Winning an award at the Essex Business Excellence Awards really puts a business on the map and opens the door to countless opportunities. Each business can enter a maximum of three categories.

Haunted by the past

A GHOST STORY (12A)

When I was five years old, I woke one night to find an old woman in the bottom of the bed, staring down at me with a benevolent smile. She silently left my room and descended the wooden stairs to the hall with me in bleary-eyed pursuit.

By the time I reached the living room, where my parents were watching television, she had vanished. When I asked my mother where the old woman had gone, there was a moment of confusion that threatened to spark panic, followed by forensic examination to confirm I wasn’t being a scamp.

Once my parents were certain I was telling the truth, my mother calmly explained that the old woman was probably the previous owner of the house, who had died peacefully in one of the bedrooms.

Ever since, I have been convinced that death is not a full stop to this gloriously bewildering life... it is merely a tantalising semi-colon.

A Ghost Story is a haunting drama about life and love after death that drapes Oscar winner Casey Affleck in a flowing white sheet as the titular spectre observing her every move and trading mournful memories with or without a sheet, capturing the devastated, yearning and emotional release of two souls, separated by tragedy.

The past
Haunted by

Oddly, written and directed by David Lowery, the film is an odyssey that caresses the heartstrings and lingers in the memory.

Intentionally languid pacing will divide audiences, who are used to jump-out-of-seat scares from cinema’s forays into the supernatural, especially one protracted scene of actress Rooney Mara tearfully devouring a pie to vomitous excess.

She plays M, who lives in a one-level house with her musician husband C (Affleck).

Late one night, they are rudely roused by a crash of mirrors by relating the story.

As time passes, rewinds and resets, the ghost of C haunted by the past.

Deception is an art that works best in peering the intrigue with crowd-pleasing nods to the era like the no-nonsense heroine’s description of co-star James McAvoy: “Handsome, late 30s, disastrous Sinead O’Connor hair.”

Another character explains witnesses a sea of blinding camera flashes outside a German cafe and deadpans: “David Hasselhoff’s in town.”

The year is 1989 and tension crackles between east and west Berlin.

KGB agent Yuri Bakhtin (Johannes Jacobsson) shoots M6 agent James Gascoigne (Sam Hargrave) dead on the snow-laden streets and steals a microfilm containing the names and locations of active field agents.

M6 chief Eric Gray (Toby Jones) and his gruff CIA counterpart Emmett Kurzfeld (John Goodman) pressgang elite British spy Lorraine Broughton (Theron) to locate Bakhtin and retrieve the microfilm before agents on both sides of the Atlantic are compromised.

She must also smuggle Soviet defector Spyglass (Eddie Marsan) out of the divided city.

Her contact in Berlin is renegade station chief David Percival (McAvoy), who knows everyone and has his grubby fingers in various pies.

AtOMIC BLONDE (15)

Sweet dreams are made of director John Leitch’s action-packed spy caper, based on the graphic novel The Coldest City by Antony Johnston and Sam Hart.

Hard-wired with 1980s nostalgia, Atomic Blonde is a kick-ass blast from the past-glansnost past that diverts attention from a flimsy plot and questionable characterisation with the most dazzling hand-to-hand fisticuffs since Mart Damon’s tour of duty as Jason Bourne.

Lead actress Charlize Theron cracked her teeth during production and was badly bruised during punishing and breathtakingly choreographed fight sequences, including an epic final showdown expertly stitched together to resemble a single fluid take.

These bravura skirmishes bode well for Leitch’s next stint in the director’s chair: Deadpool 2.

Screenwriter Kurt Johnstad attempts some usual Suspects-style smoke and mirrors by relating the narrative in flashback from the confines of an interrogation room.

From the moment Lorraine saunters through the airport arrivals lounge, she is under KGB surveillance and has to fight her way out of tight corners.

She finds an unlikely ally in inexperienced French operative Delphine Lasalle (Sofia Boutella), who believes she knows the identity of a traitor in the M6 ranks, codename Satchel.

Atomic Blonde is muscular escapism entertainment, set to a thumping soundtrack of familiar tracks by Depeche Mode, A Flock Of Seagulls, George Michael, Nena and New Order.

Theron sprints and somersaults through each frame with gung-ho intent and her steamy bedroom scene with Boutella threatens to melt celluloid.

In a pleasing reversal of action movie gender stereotypes, McAvoy trades blows with his words rather than his fists.

Leitch plays to his strengths as a stunt co-ordinator, pushing cast to physical limits with each exhilarating flurry of punches, kicks, tooth-shattering face plants and acrobatic tumbles.

Blondes have more bone-crunching fun.
FOOD & DRINK

I’ve dallied and dallied with three red wines, because I wanted to recommend them for barbecues. The TV show is on BBC2 on Mondays at 8.30pm, and on BBC iPlayer.

Nadiya with the Queen and her 90th birthday cake

RAISE A GLASS WITH JANE CLARE

FRANC. The nose is toasty, with dried wood, plums, eucalyptus and forest fruits, and flavours of black fruit are propped up with medium tannins and a tidy finish.

PARKER STATION PINOT NOIR 2015 (£13.50, The Wine Society, 13.5% abv): This is one of those wines I forget to sip because I keep waving the glass in front of my nose to savour the aromas. It hails from Santa Barbara County, the California wine region made famous by the cult movie Sideways.

It has a delightful potpourri of sweet red fruits, cherry and raspberry, a lick of vanilla, a wave of violets and a touch of wet soil (go with me on that one). I finally took a sip and loved the flavours too; cherry, strawberry, a hint of savoury, with medium acidity and tannins. Grill a salmon.

MARQUES DE CACERES GRAN RESERVA, 2009 (£19.99, or £17.99 in a buy six deal at Majestic, 14% abv): I know this wine is almost £20 but it is amazing. One of the loveliest rioja wines I’ve tasted in a long time. This year it won a gold at the International Wine Challenge, where judges described it as “complex and a little bit feisty” with a “huge, spicy finish”. It is a blend of 85% tempranillo with graciano and garnacha tinta grapes making up the remainder.

The classic notes of toasty, coffee, plums, and vanilla are so moreish, and they are reflected in the flavours too. Perfect with lamb chops.

Also in my glass... I’m feeling emotionally battered and bruised after I met up with some pals yesterday. Needless to say, today is alcohol-free day and I have a couple of drinks which are helping me get through.

TORRE NATURE ROSE (£5.99 from Waitrose, Ocado, Amazon): This is an alcohol-free pink wine, which is made as a true rosé wine and then all the alcohol is extracted. Well, 0.5% abv remains - so I’m not truly sticking to the alcohol-free plan. It’s a pretty cerise colour with aromas of red berries and the flavours are much the same; there’s a sense of “something missing” with the sensation on the palate, which otherwise is refreshing with a nice acidity.

Finally, French sparkling water brand Perrier is relaunching in the UK and has brought flavoured waters to our shelves. Perrier Flavours include Perrier Green Apple and Perrier Lemon (RRP £9.99 at major supermarkets). The lemon has helped me through the day, chilled with ice and a lemon slice. I pretended there was gin in it too. Is that wrong of me?

It’s been a busy couple of years for Great British Bake Off winner Nadiya Hussain, as CLAIRE SPREADBURY discovers NADYA HUSSAIN is, without doubt, The Great British Bake Off’s most successful winner. Two years ago, the Luton-born mother-of-three first appeared on our TV screens, and won the hearts of the nation as well as the BBC competition.

There isn’t a single Bake Off fan who wasn’t stirred by her victory speech. “I’m never going to put boundaries on myself ever again,” she declared.

“I’m never going to say I can’t do it. I can. And I will. And she has. From fronting her own TV programmes, appearing on talk shows, game shows and cookery shows, to releasing four cookbooks and being asked to bake a birthday cake for the Queen, it’s been a busy time.

“I can’t believe it’s been two years already,” says the 32-year-old, when we discuss her latest project, a TV show and cookbook called Nadiya’s British Food Adventure. “I’ve been so busy, it feels like a bit of a blur.

Claiming “British food has become a melting pot of cuisines and cultures”, Nadiya wanted to find out what was being eaten in the hubs of our homes, before getting creative in her own kitchen and coming up with her take on Brit-style cooking.

“Because I’m from England, from a broad, Muslim, a mixture of a little bit of everything, I’ve always asked myself what’s British? What’s English? What do we eat?”

“If somebody asks me what British food is, I’d say it’s what I eat at home. What I eat at home as a child was rice and curry, and then at school, I’d have pie and mash - to me, that’s British food.

“I think everybody’s own experiences shape what British food is for them, so it was really interesting to go on that journey and find out what my interpretation is.

“Apart from what I grew up with and what I eat now, what I am today is my family. My mum is a big influence. Her and my dad are incredible chefs - to me, that’s British food.

“She still doesn’t enjoy it but she’s amazing. I think it’s what makes her so likeable. Nadiya is stuck for words. She shrugs, cracks a beautiful open smile and says: “I don’t know, I’m just me. Whether I’m talking to you, on telly or whatever it is I’m doing, I don’t ever try to be anything other than myself. People see that it’s what people see. She also takes everything in her stride, as and when it comes along. There’s no life plan.

“Nah, I don’t set myself any goals,” she says. “What’s happened over the last two years, I didn’t plan for any of it. I didn’t plan to go on Bake Off - my husband did the application.

“I didn’t plan on winning it. I just completely fluked that. I never planned anything up to this point, and I think that works because I’m a strong believer in ‘here today, gone tomorrow’. I don’t believe anything’s forever.

“We all have to go and, as morbid as that sounds, that’s what makes me enjoy every single day. Life is too short to be doing something you don’t love.

Here are three of Nadiya’s recipes to try for yourself.

■ Nadiya’s British Food Adventure by Nadiya Hussain is published by Michael Joseph, priced £20. The TV show is on BBC2 on Mondays at 8.30pm, and on BBC iPlayer.

■ Nadiya’s new TV show, featuring French wines from small domains and châteaux. The selection will change every few months as the chosen wines sell out. The first rollout has included a Lirac from Château de Bouchassay (£9) and a Côtes du Rhône white, Domaines Des Bouts (£9).

■ Château Le Plantey is a right-bank Bordeaux, mainly merlot with a touch of cabernet. It’s made as a true rosé wine, because I wanted to recommend them for barbecues. I’m looking out of the window right now and it is pouring down.

Food & Drink

I’ve dillied and dallied with three red wines, because I wanted to recommend them for barbecues. …

For the salad: a large clove of garlic, crushed and finely chopped, 1 large red onion, diced, 15g fresh coriander, finely chopped, 1 small chili, deseeded and finely chopped, 1 tbsp wholegrain mustard, 3 tbsp olive oil, 250g cooked puy lentils (buy a ready-cooked pouch), 2 x 400g tins of chickpeas, drained, Juice of 1 lemon, 1 tbsp salt.

METHOD:

1. Slice the steak lengthways as thinly as possible and set aside in a bowl.
2. Put the oil, lemon rind, lemon juice, chillies, coriander and salt into a food processor. Blitz to a smooth paste, then add the paste to the bowl of steak pieces. Mix well, then cover and set aside for 20 minutes.
3. Meanwhile, make the salad. Put the garlic, onion, coriander, chilli, mustard and oil into a bowl and mix well. Add the lentils and chickpeas. Squeeze in the lime juice and mix through the salt, then cover and set aside.
4. Preheat the oven to 200°C (180°C fan) (gas 9) and lightly grease a roasting dish. Or if you prefer to cook your skewers on a griddle pan, grease it lightly and put it on a medium high heat to start warming up.
5. Meanwhile, skewer the beef pieces in a zigzag pattern. Do this until you have filled all eight skewers. If you have any leftover marinade, just dab it on top of the beef.
6. Line the skewers on the greased roasting dish and bake for eight to ten minutes, making sure to turn them over halfway through.
7. Alternatively, if griddling, put them on the hot pan and cook for three to four minutes on each side.
8. Once cooked, serve the warm beef skewers with the salad alongside.

INGREDIENTS:

350g shortcrust pastry
1 tbsp paprika
Plain flour, for dusting
4 medium eggs
150ml white milk
250g Branstow pickle (small chunks)
250g mature Cheddar cheese, grated

METHOD:

1. Take the block of shortcrust pastry, flatten it out slightly and sprinkle all over with the paprika. Fold the edges in over the top, then knead the pastry until you have filled all eight skewers. If you have any leftover marinade, just dab it on top of the beef.
2. Line the inside of the tin with the rolled-out pastry. Press it into the edges, right into the grooves, leaving some overhang. Pierce the base all over with a fork. This stops it puffing up while baking.
3. Cover the base and side with a large piece of baking paper and fill with baking beans to weigh the pastry down. Take the hot tray out of the oven and place the prepared tart tin on it.
4. Bake for 25 minutes, then take out of the oven and remove the paper and baking beans, and bake for another 15 minutes.
5. Meanwhile, put your eggs into a jug and lightly whisk. Add the milk and stir. Once the tart shell is out of the oven, spread the pickles over the base and cover evenly with the grated cheese.
6. Pour in the milky egg mixture and place the whole tray back in the oven, on the middle shelf, for 25 to 30 minutes, until the filling is set and golden, with just a slight wobble in the middle.
7. Once the tart is cool enough to handle, slice off the pastry overhang using a sharp serrated knife. Leave to cool in the tin for 30 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.
Goldie thought drugs and partying would end his life early. However, since devoting himself to yoga, he is more productive than ever before. Ahead of his tour, he discusses legacy, spirituality and why he voted for Jeremy Corbyn, with LAURA HARDING

I thought I would be dead by 50. I am blessed to be here...

Goldie left, will be on tour this summer

Goldie, always thought he would be dead by now. He was pretty sure his years of drug abuse and partying would mean his time would run out long before he marked his half century.

But now he’s 51 and anxious not to be late for his hot yoga class, which starts in 45 minutes.

To say one of the founding fathers of drum ‘n’ bass is a reformed character would be an understatement. He’s been living a different kind of life for many years now, but he’s still aware that it could all catch up with him.

“I am looking at whether or not I can get to 70,” he says. “And whether possibly genetics will allow me to get to my 80s.”

“My dad is in his nineties, my granddad lived till he was a hundred and something, so maybe genetics will help, we will see.

“For a long time I thought I was going to die in my forties. I thought I would have OD’d a long time ago and I kind of accepted it.

“There were times when I wobbled and thought ‘This is it, I’m gone.’ So now I wake up and the first thing I say is I’m really blessed to be here and I’m grateful for this day.

“I don’t know if I will make it past 70 but I’m hoping I will, I’m just taking every day as it comes.”

Age and change have brought a great deal of introspection, often not finishing a train of thought before moving on to the next.

So while Goldie – who is touring the UK and Europe this summer – is happier he’s getting older, he is still a big kid at heart.

“I’m 12,” he says. “I refuse to grow up. I have a mental age of 12, I see the world as a child.”

Looking over to the radio playing at the table next to us, he adds: “I’m wondering whether or not that radio sounds like a transistor radio I first took apart when I was eight.

“I don’t focus on stuff. When I was young I took a transister radio apart and now I can actually smell the electrics inside it. I know what the electronics smell like. I’m not wired the same and I choose not to be wired the same.

“I think the adults in my life didn’t show me much so why should I listen to them?”

This is perhaps not so surprising. Born Clifford Joseph Price in Walsall in 1965, Goldie had as tough a childhood as one can imagine.

His father Clement disappeared shortly after he was born and his mother Margaret put him into care when he was three, keeping the other kids at home.

While he was eventually reunited with his mother, he found sanctuary as a graffiti artist in the emerging street art scene.

Now he’s keen that his art and music leave something positive for his youngest daughter Coco.

He also has a son, Jamie Price, who was jailed for life in 2010 for killing a rival gang member outside a Wolverhampton nightclub.

“I think the art and the legacy might make money so my daughter won’t have to work as hard,” he muses.

“I think it’s important for human beings to leave a positive legacy of something behind anyway.

“Why are there statues in London? There are people who had wealth in this country who left a lot of money for people that were below the water line. There should be a lot more of that now.

“I think people only see the immediate, I am no spring chicken and neither am I a politician, but I am trying to find myself spiritually. ’

“That word spiritual – comes up a lot. He says he’s spiritual rather than political, but he backed Jeremy Corbyn in the last election.

“When you people generally do politics they are not the people that are going to push the button tomorrow and kill us all.

“He adds: ‘I don’t think Corbyn is the best choice but better the devil you know than the one you don’t’.

“Goldie’s latest record, The Journey Man, came out in June and got its name because “the Journey Man is incomplete, he wonders around and never truly completes anything, there should be a humbleness in that, you can’t think you’ve arrived”.

“He adds: “There is truthfulness in the music sometimes, it doesn’t sound like anything else.

“It doesn’t mean it’s the best but sometimes people want to be in denial. It’s easier, it’s safer not to listen.

“It’s safer to put your helmet on and just go through it all. “I think life should be important, whatever you do. If everyone made music like me everyone would be a bit too depressed or elated, one of the two, I’m not sure which one.

“I just think you will be able to play this album in 20 years and it will sound great.”

“Goldie is minutely involved in every aspect of the making of his music, in constant conversation with the team he works with, and he will listen to it long after it’s finished.

“He says: “People get that mixed up a little bit, thinking ‘oh god he’s really full of himself because he listens to his own music’. but no, I listen to a resonance that is channelled by something far greater than I am.

“I’m just channelling it, it’s not me that made it and I can listen to it like it’s not me that made it.”

A LITTLE BIT OF CALM
The lucky buyer of this Church Langley home can be assured of a quiet spot with the detached house tucked away in a cul-de-sac
PAGES 30&31
A stunning Church Langley house with a beautiful interior is now on the market for £550,000. Estate agency Geoffrey Matthew is selling the luxurious four-bedroom property in Westbury Rise, Harlow, as the pick of the week.

The lucky buyer can be assured of a quiet spot with the detached house tucked away in a cul-de-sac.

The large lounge and dining areas come with some classy furnishings and a fireplace.

French doors lead out from the kitchen to the garden, which is another unique selling point.

Partly decked and partly paved area is a nice view and a perfect setting for a meal outside or a party.

There is also a summer house at the back and a double garage at the front.

Its proximity to a bridle path also makes it a nice place to take a dog for a walk.

Geoffrey Matthews has classified the property as an extended family home and all rooms are of a generous size.

A spokesman said: “The property offers large accommodation comprising of downstairs cloakroom, lounge, separate dining area, large kitchen with utility area. The first floor has four good sized bedrooms, en-suite to master bedroom and a family bathroom.”

He added: “Outside the property has a stunning garden with side access gate, summer house with power and also benefiting from a double garage and a drive for three cars.”

The house is a short walk from Church Langley Tesco and other shops.

Harlow Town station is 2.3 miles away and Harlow Mill is just 1.9 miles.

Viewing is recommended.

OAST WITH THE MOST

If you’re looking for a beautiful family cottage with glorious countryside views, then this property may be just what you’re looking for. Holkins Cottage at Mumfords Hill in Blackmore End offers a spacious master bedroom fitted with an en-suite, as well as three other luxurious bedrooms.

The property also contains a large sitting room and sun room on the ground floor, perfect for relaxing and taking in those countryside views.

On top of this, the property also comes with an adjacent barn with planning permission granted for both rear and side extensions and a small porch at the front.

The cottage is thought to date back as far as the 17th century and has been restored to provide a comfortable modern lifestyle. But the property still retains much of its historical charm, including several fireplaces all fitted with wood burners as well as timber beams which line the ceiling.

The garden is set on nearly an acre of land and contains several raised vegetable patches, a greenhouse and a patio.

Located in the semi-rural village of Blackmore End, the property is only five miles north of Braintree and enjoys easy access to central London from Witham railway station which is just over 12 miles away.

There is choice of both state and private schools, including the grammar schools in both Chelmsford and Colchester, and New Hall and Felsted. For those with younger children, Shalford Primary School is only one and a half miles away.

And if you are looking for a good local boozer, The Bull is within a short walking distance and offers a great selection of traditional pub meals and real ales.

Hopkins Cottage is on the market through Strutt and Parker for a guide price of £995,000.
Home-tech doesn’t have to be all substance and no style, writes SAM WYLIE-HARRIS

With technology playing a key role in our lives, there couldn’t be a better time to plug into the latest home-tech innovations that are also stylish enough to put proudly on display. Because it’s not all about gadgets and gizmos - technology can be sleek, retro, and quirky too, so tapping into tech trends needn’t take away from your decor vibes.

These are our top 10 picks from the latest in stylish home-tech...

LIVING SPACE

Geebo Daisy Lamps, £52 each, Amara (amara.com)

Italian brand Geebo, known for its contemporary plastic furniture and playful designs, have added some wow factor to wild flowers and created these striking daisy lamps. Place them on a desk, next to the bed or use them for backlighting to make your real plants glow (but we can’t promise they’ll grow).

This all-in-one music solution might look retro and devoid of any details - but don’t be fooled by the simplicity of the classic lines. The new R4 will take your listening pleasure to a whole new level, featuring DAB, DAB+ and FM Tuner with RDS, Radio CD player, Bluetooth with AiptX, USB charge and playback port, which all adds up to quality 21st century sound.

BATHROOM

Caple LUC/CH Lucet Electronic Tap, RRP £1,014, Caple (caple.co.uk)

Minimalist kitchen? Then switch to a smart tap instead. With ‘point, gesture, wheel and voice control’ and a fully integrated digital display with scrolling text, touch sensitive controls, integrated stereo speakers – and a heated demister pad which prevents the mirror from steaming up. Ta da.

Audio-Image Mirror, £496, Roper Rhodes (roperrhodes.co.uk)

Mirror, mirror on the wall… who has the best bathroom radio of them all? This multimedia bathroom mirror boasts DAB and FM radio reception, a fully integrated digital display with scrolling text, touch sensitive controls, integrated stereo speakers - and a heated demister pad which prevents the mirror from steaming up. Ta da.

Samsung The Frame UE55LS003 Art Mode 55” Smart 4K Ultra HD HDR LED TV, £1,999, Currys (currys.co.uk)

It’s art, but not as we know it. Samsung’s new lifestyle TV ‘The Frame’ turns into an ultra-modern canvas when not in use, and thanks to the in-built ‘Art Mode’ feature, you can select artworks from more than 100 specially curated pieces, or display your own photos. Available in 65” and 55", there’s a selection of frames to suit your space, including oak and walnut finishes, along with a frame bezel available in walnut, beige and white.

LG OLED65W7V Signature OLED HDR 4K Ultra HD Smart TV, 65” with Freeview Play, Picture-On-Wall Design & Dolby Atmos Sound Base Unit, £7,999, John Lewis (johnlewis.com)

Meanwhile, LG’s ‘wallpaper TV’ can be mounted right against the wall with its super-skinny design (2.57mm). The OLED panel, 4K UHD resolution and HDR colour-scape create the closest thing to a cinema experience, while the bulky stuff you don’t want to see is housed in a separate LG OLED hub. With a Smart TV webOS platform, Magic Remote (with point, gesture, wheel and voice control) and Freeview Play, it’s the supercar of the small screen.

LG DD940BK Induction Downdraft Extractor, £299, John Lewis (johnlewis.com)

Extractor fans aren’t exactly dinner-table stock from sunlight. Cheers!

Jarre AeroBull X51 Bluetooth Speaker, from £469.94, Amazon (amazon.co.uk)

Available in matte black, glossy red or gleaming white, these speakers disguised-as-bulldogs are bound to be a talking point. Boasting 120 watts of aerial high-definition 2.1 sound with deep bass rendering, compatible via Bluetooth with any smartphone or audio source, built-in rechargeable battery and up to 10 hours of playtime, what’s not to love?
KITCHEN

SONY Xperia Touch Portable Projector, £1,399, Selfridges

Imagine if you could turn any surface in your home into a touchscreen? Critics think the latest in home projector technology may change the way we watch video, play games and listen to music – and it could even change the way we cook. The infrared light array, with 60fps camera system, featured in this nifty portable projector turns a flat surface into a 23-inch touchscreen. Clever.

KWT 6112 iG Built-In Wine Conditioner Unit, £2,399, Miele (miele.co.uk)

Want to take your taste for fine wine to new heights? This built-in wine conditioner will temperature-control 18 of your favourite bottles and can even accommodate magnums (always too bulky for the fridge). With storage over three levels, each rack can be personalised so you can list the vintage, producer or style. Touch controls offer a temperature range of 5-20°C, and the UV resistant glass door protects your precious stock from sunlight. Cheers!

DD940BK Induction Downdraft Extractor, from £3,690, Caple (caple.co.uk)

Extractor fans aren’t exactly dinner-table conversation, but there’s nothing worse than pungent cooking smells after you’ve prepared a delicious meal. With cutting-edge plasma technology, this latest, ultra-sleek model purifies the air and eliminates any whiffs. Fully integrated into the 90cm black glass induction hob, the motor draws air through the ducting towards the filter, where it’s purified and cleaned, eradicating 95% of odours.

LUC/CH Lucet Electronic Tap, RRP £1,014, Caple (caple.co.uk)

Traditional kettle ruining the cool lines of your minimalist kitchen? Then switch to a smart tap instead. Caple have tapped into new levels of tap tech, with a colour-changing LED to indicate the water temperature. The light changes from blue to red, so you know exactly how hot or cold your water is – and precisely when it’s hot enough for your perfect cuppa. The polished chrome finish will add some extra pizzazz too.
Actor Clint Eastwood is best known for his portrayal of tobacco-chewing gunslingers in 1960s spaghetti westerns such as A Fistful of Dollars, the Dirty Harry films of the 1970s, and his more recent directorial successes including American Sniper.

But the film that broadened his appeal as an actor beyond the gruff characters he played in his earlier movies was 1971's psychological thriller Play Misty for Me about a jazz-playing radio DJ called Dave stalked by a violent ex-lover.

The film was based on real-life stories – Eastwood knew a DJ on a local jazz station and one of his actress friends had endured the attentions of an obsessive fan. The film was shot in the seaside town of Monterey in California but its final scene, in which Dave confronts his homicidal ex at the home of his new girlfriend, was filmed at a clifftop house in Carmel. Eastwood lived in the town in real life and went on to be its mayor in 1986.

The family who owned the property continued to live there until three years ago when the current owner bought the three-bedroom house and set about spending £2m on refurbishing it.

The property offers stunning views over the ocean and the craggy coastline and is within a gated compound which includes a detached one-bedroom guest house.

The main living area contains contemporary living and dining, several fireplaces, a kitchen open to the living area with bar seating and an additional breakfast area.

The property is for sale with Sotheby’s International Realty (+1 831 372 7700) for $11.9m.

Mel Gibson has never been shy of controversy. As well as relationship problems with his now ex-partner Oksana Grigorieva he also made some well-documented contentious comments during a newspaper interview in 1991 and to a police officer after being stopped for speeding in California in 2006. But while many predicted his career would end following the most recent revelations, last year he directed the biopic Hacksaw Ridge and starred in the crime drama Blood Father. He has also been offloading properties. Earlier this year he sold a Frank Lloyd Wright-inspired home in Sherman Oaks, California for $2.1m but has now put his other Californian home up for sale too. It’s a five-bedroom medieval-style mansion in Malibu overlooking the sea within a 5.5-acre estate. The property features stone cladding, a wooden turret, a huge stone fireplace in the lounge, a wrought iron chandelier and, includes a church-style stained glass window in the shower. It also has four bathrooms, a hot tub and spa, pool, pool house and an outside dining terrace. The 21-year-old property also comes with a Hollywood back story. Gibson bought it off actor David Duchovny in 2008 for £11.5m. The star of The X-Files built the house with his then wife Tea Leoni in 1996. It’s for sale at £17.5m. CRICKET FANS’ DREAM HOME

England cricket fans have good reason to be cheerful following the team’s decisive victory over South Africa in the third test at The Oval last month. And if you were watching the action on TV then you will have seen, as always, the batsmen emerging from the ground’s historic, Victorian pavilion where players wait to bat and within which members can watch play, if they don’t ‘bear their torsos’ and maintain ‘reasonable standards of dress’, club rules dictate.

The pavilion, which was erected in 1858 but replaced in 1898, was designed by Thomas Muir who also put together plans for the pavilion at Otford.

Keen cricket fans who would like to live in a home designed by Muir that bears a striking resemblance to the Oval’s pavilion should make their way to Applethwaite Hall in the Lake District National Park, which recently achieved world heritage status. Agent Humpherts is selling apartments within the recently refurbished property and says they are likely to be the last homes to be sold within the park before new second-homes and occupancy restrictions are introduced.

Applethwaite Hall was built in 1901 in the Arts and Crafts style for a local family and then converted into flats during the 1960s, which have been upgraded into 12 luxury apartments including one, two and three bedroom units starting at £265,000.

The village of Windermere is a mile away, as is its eponymous lake.

We would all like our gardens - whether front, back or side - to be places of beauty, nature and enjoyment. We often like them to be private spaces, too, havens from the world.

So, if we want to achieve a private, peaceful plot, how do we screen our Edens from our neighbours? Or from the unattractive paraphernalia of daily life - wheelie bins, oil tanks, washing lines, unattractive sheds, compost bins and even septic tanks - which can interfere with the picture of the green oasis we have in our mind’s eye?

How can you best plan for these necessities, create garden boundaries or camouflage items when desired?

Firstly, give careful consideration to your overall view, along with practicalities when positioning unsightly but essential services in the garden. Oil tanks and waste bins need to be accessible for delivery or collection lorries, and it’s not practical to store bicycles too far from the front gate.

If you need to screen an item which is visually offensive, consider the options.

For dedicated gardeners, the first choice will always be to use plants, often in the form of a hedge, either clipped into a formal wall shape or left in a more informal woolly state.

Evergreen hedge options include yew, privet and holly, and will provide all-year cover and act as a buffer, reducing any noise. Varieties of Ceanothus, also evergreen, Hebe, Olearia or Pittosporum may make a less regimented alternative. Tall grasses, such as Miscanthus, look great even over winter in their faded beauty. Bamboo is very elegant, but be sure to choose clumping varieties which won’t spread wildly all over the garden.

Trellis is the standard option, being cheap and easy to install. Its appearance can be greatly improved by planting climbers through it. Fastest of all is Russian vine Fallopia – but be careful as it can get out of control.

Other evergreen climbing plant choices include Clematis armandii with its deliciously almond-scented white flowers in spring, or semi-evergreen, such as the chocolate vine, Akebia quinata.

Star jasmine is beautiful but best for a more sheltered position. The flowers are usually white and scented but can also be pink (Pink Shower) or yellow (Star of Toscana).

Time to decide on your spring bulbs

- Raspberries and other summer fruiting berries that have fruited this year can be cut out and new shoots tied in for next year.
- Dahlias and lilies may need staking as they achieve full heights this month.
- Lawn chafers or leatherjackets a problem? Now’s a good time to treat the soil with nematodes. And watch out for scarlet lily beetle - remove by hand.
- Make sure azaelas and camellias don’t dry out as they are forming buds for next spring. Hanging baskets and containers need daily watering.
- Encourage another flush of flowering with a fortnightly dose of high potash such as a tomato feed.
- Bulb catalogues are out, so it is time to think about what you will be planting for the spring garden next year. Early spring bulbs will provide interest and colour in your garden during some of the toughest gardening months.
- Glasshouses need damping down in the hot weather and plants will get scorched if it’s very sunny so remember to shade where appropriate.
- Keep an eye out for pests such as red spider mite and order biological controls where necessary.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

BUDDLEJA ‘LOCHINCH’ – BUTTERFLY BUSH

The air is sweetly perfumed with the fragrance of buddlejas, and the butterflies are waltzing around their long purple blooms.

One of the most popular buddleja cultivars, ‘Lochinch’, was a seedling discovered by chance in the castle of the same name in Scotland.

One of its parents is the much-maligned Buddleja davidii which has taken over our railways and derelict sites and buildings.

However, its offspring is better-behaved, forming a large but compact bush.

Keep it this way with annual early spring pruning, cutting back to within a few buds of last year’s growth.

Buddlejas will grow in most soils, though well-drained is optimal, and in sun or partial shade.

ASK DIARMUID

Q I would appreciate your advice on my pak choi. I’d like to know if there’s anything I can do to stop the caterpillars from destroying the plants?

A Pak choi, like other members of the cabbage family, is a favoured breeding ground for the cabbage butterfly.

Watch out for their eggs on the underside of leaves.

Removing them will at least stop the caterpillars hatching. Prevention is better than cure in this case – a frame with horticultural fleece or fine netting over your crop will prevent butterflies from laying eggs. In the meantime, remove caterpillars by hand. Good luck!

JOBS FOR THE WEEK

Firstly, give careful thought as to how you will screen your plot, how do we screen our private spaces, too, havens where we have in our minds our private plots and buildings.

- Shrubs
  - For dedicated gardeners, the first alternatives are camouflaging items when garden boundaries or garden eye-sores, stylish way to hide.
  - A bamboo fence is a regimented alternative.
  - Evergreen hedge options include Hebe, yew, privet and holly, and will provide reducing any noise.

- Bulbs
  - It’s time to think about what you would like to plant for the spring and building a buffer against their unattractive par aphernalia of daily paraphernalia.
  - Bulb catalogues are out, so it may be a good idea to include biological controls where possible.
  - For next year.

- Fertilizer
  - Now’s a good time to treat the tomato feed. Planting another flush will ensure good yields.

- Fertilizer
  - Encourage another flush of summer fruiting berries that will need a dose of high potash such as a slow-release fertilizer.

- Cutting
  - Make sure azaleas and rhododendrons are staked as they achieve full height this month.

- Gardening tips
  - Now’s a good time to take cuttings of citrus for next year.
  - For next year.

The ever-growing Sports Utility Vehicle market sees no sign of abating which is why car makers continue to clamour to always have new models available and this month Renault joins the top end of this already crowded sector with their new Koleos.

The French car maker already have their Captur and Kadjar in the smaller section of this so-called crossover market and now the Koleos completes their line-up coming in as their premium model competing against rivals like the Skoda Kodiaq and Nissan X-Trail.

Hardly surprising this new Koleos shares the same platform as its sister group rival the X-Trail but it has to be said from the start that it’s a far better all-rounder whilst Renault UK are ultra cautious on how many of these South Korean made models they will sell here.

It certainly won’t be in big numbers but it will give Renault a decent enough foothold in the sector and far better than the original 2010 Koleos which they soon ditched from the market place.

The line-up this time around is plenty simply and straightforward too with just two diesel engines on offer - a 1.6-litre 130bhp and a 2.0-litre 175bhp - and two gearboxes with either a six-speed manual or seven-speed CVT style Auto X-Tronic and two drive trains with either two-wheel-drive or four-wheel drive.

There are also just two high-end trim levels available with either Dynamique S Nav or Signature Nav which is line with line-ups in other Renault model ranges and the Koleos is only available as a five-seater, unlike its Skoda rival with an option of seven seats with Renault bosses saying buyers wanting two extra seats can find it in their Grand Scenic model.

The top spec Signature Nav AWD is expected to be the best seller even with an on-the-road price tag of £32,700 (manual gearbox) and £34,200 (automatic gearbox) while those buyers wanting to pay a few bob less for a four-wheel drive still have to pay £30,400 for the Dynamique S Nav version.

Equally those drivers feeling they won’t ever need AWD can opt for the entry-level two-wheel-drive Dynamique S Nav 1.6-litre diesel at £27,500 which when looking at the large amount of standard equipment on board will realise they are getting true value for their money.

This includes hill start assist, emergency braking system, rear parking camera, blind spot warning, automatic headlights and wipers, panoramic sunroof, 18-inch alloy wheels, seven-inch touch screen with TomTom sat nav and much more.

But most buyers are expected to go for the equally impressive kitted out Signature Nav with 19-inch alloy wheels, full LED headlights, powered automatic tailgate and a much clearer 8.7-inch touch screen with TomTom while both trim levels offer a host of on-board safety features.

The two-litre engine models will be the best seller and it’s easy to see why because it’s really nice to drive particularly with the CVT auto box which has pleasantly smooth and responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT – responsive up and down gear moments – something such CVT -

Renault says new technology has helped their engineers to produce a better system and overall that is correct and the only downside on my first drive was that when in first and second gear accelerate quite hard and there’s a bit of a growl from the engine but once up to speed its cruises quietly and efficiently.

The steering is nice and crisp and the car gives a comfortable enough ride only finding a few bumps and lumps in the road when going at slower speeds across twisting country B roads.

Inside too there’s plenty of space, particularly in the rear with good leg and headroom whilst the seats front and rear (both have heated seats fitted) really do give excellent all-round lumbar support.

They are far better than in either the Kodiaq or X-Trail in my view while the interior finish has nice soft touch plastics but we can do without the faux wooden trim pieces on the fascia which looks and feel a bit cheap in my book!

In terms of luggage space the Koleos is on a par with its rivals having 579 litres and it has plenty of storage cubby holes and the overall finish of the cabin does have that premium, quality feel about it.

Overall this new Koleos will provide the ideal flagship model in the SUV sector that Renault want because its spacious, attractive looking from the outside, exceptionally well equipped and a viable alternative to its rivals.

Those more cash-conscious buyers without the need for AWD will sensibly go for the really well equipped entry-level model while those with less money concerns will rightly go for the top spec Signature Nav AWD auto with all the whistles and bells on board.

Harlow Judo Club players who took part in the championships weight groups heavier than himself as there were no other competitors in his own group. He fought valiantly against the others and showed great judo techniques. Ellis said: “Overall, I am very pleased with the team’s performance – they all fought very well, listened to my instructions and end of the day they did all the hard work to secure their medals.” For more details on the club, based in Foldcroft see: www.harlowjudoclub.com.

Flynn is first back for club in forest race

HARLOW Running Club had six runners at the Orion Forest 5, an uneventful five mile trail race through Epping Forest. Steen Flynn finished in 113th place out of 311 finishers and second Vet 55 in a respectable 39:48.

He was followed by Martin McColligan 172nd in 42:21, Debbie Barry 176th and first Female Vet 55 in 42:30, Louise Costes 186th in 43:41, Harlow Page 207th in 45:15 and Janice Page 214th in 45:53. Meanwhile at Harlow parkrun 5k Ben Chitty was victorious in out of 208 finishers in a superb 20:20.

Hawks boss eyes place in play-offs

By Marc Beyerer
sportsdesk@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town boss Danny Chapman expects to see his team challenging for a place in the play-offs as the new Hstotic Premier Division season gets under way this weekend.

The Hawks were in contention for a play-off spot with just three matches remaining before fading away last season, and Chapman hopes to build on that promising campaign.

New signings such as Jack Wilkinson and James Roller, both from AFC Sudbury, Reece Dobson, from Needham Market, Jimmy Shepherd from Dagenham & Redbridge and Nigel Neata from Braintree Town, should give the team added strength in depth for a sustained challenge at the upper reaches of the table.

“Last year everyone thought we’d finish mid-table and although we finished tenth in the end, with three games to go we were in a chance of making the play-offs,” said Chapman. “You always want to do better than you did the season before so our aim is definitely to get into the play-offs this season.”

Town have had some mixed results in pre-season but Chapman has been generally pleased with what he has seen so far, and how the team is coming together.

“I’ve been encouraged by pre-season,” he continued.

Progress

“There’s still work to be done and progress to be made but you’re not going to get that in pre-season. It’s going to take a period of time for everyone to settle in.”

“I’m pleased with that, I’ve seen so far and I’m hoping we’ll hit the ground running.”

Town travel to Harrow Borough on Saturday and then host Dulwich Hamlet, one of the team’s Chapman expects to also be challenging at the top.

“It’s always difficult to predict who’s going to do well because you don’t know who has been spending money and who hasn’t,” he said.

Billericay will be , Margate and Tonbridge Angels are the main teams I expect to be up there as well as Dulwich Hamlet. But there’s always at least one play off place up for grabs in April.”

Town will be without skipper Craig Pope as he is suspended for the first two games, but Chapman hopes both Wilkinson and Charlie Dickens, who have been struggling with injuries recently, will be fit to play.

Chapman believes team can push on from last season

Harlow fall in drop zone

HARLOW Cricket Club lost by seven wickets at Harold Wood in Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League Division One on Saturday.

Harlow won the toss and elected to bat. They got off to a steady start with openers Hafiz Yawar Afaq scoring 51 and Alan Jones making 70.

This continued with captain Rehman Ahmed scoring 32 and Ali Rehman Kaghaz getting a 50. A couple of late wickets fell and Harlow moved onto 250-5 from they allotted 50 overs.

Harold Wood came out knowing that a win will lift them nicely clear of Harlow and set about the task.

Scoring at almost a run an over quicker than Harlow, Harold Wood chased down the required score in 19.5 overs with the loss of just three wickets.

A couple of wickets fell but Harlow moved onto 250-6. The defeat leaves Harlow untried at Victory in five matches and they are now in the relegation zone.

This Saturday they face a tough match at Buckhurst Hill, who are unbeaten in five albeit with two abandoned games.

Harlow Town boss Danny Chapman is eyeing the top five
